Will's Sun

Villes sol

A poetic visual narrative about longing and memory, swirling kisses and dancing clouds, and about all the vast and impossible things that can only be expressed with a brushstroke.

Through her evocative illustrations, Ane Bjørn gives form to everything that children (and adults) sometimes find challenging to express with words: dreams, fears, sorrow, anger and imagination.

SYNOPSIS

Will wants to draw his father. But it is hard to draw someone you cannot really remember, and when Will tries, the result is just angry, black scribbles. But then he meets his neighbor, a painter, and begins to understand that pictures can look a thousand different ways and express a thousand different things. They can mirror the world we see or express the world we carry inside us, and neither is more "right" than the other.

Tallulah plans this as a book that can be used in pre-school and middle-grade, because of the many themes contained in the artwork, but not expressed with words.
